PROTESTS AGAINST 'HULA DANCE' TURNED INTO PRESS-AGENT 'DOPE'

San Diego Exposition Bureau Announces Candidate Hughes and Wife Saw Exhibition

Protests from Hawaii against the so-called "hula dance" at the San Diego Exposition have apparently been turned into press-agent material for the exposition. The Star-Bulletin received by today's mail the following from the exposition press bureau, showing how the objections made here are used to advertise further the dance of the "Princess Lei Lokalani" (who is she, by the way?) and her sister:

"Hawaii has protested the hula hula given at the exposition by Princess Lei Lokalani and her pretty sister, Kahinano. With the most cultured American citizens applauding the protest offered across the Pacific comes from the Hawaiian Promotion Committee, which says the exposition dance is not a hula at all, but more of a Chicago hoochi-koochi."

"James Shaw, father of the two pretty dancers, said that he would not permit them to dance the real Hawaiian hula and that if the real hula that is danced in the islands was danced on the islands the authorities would drive them off the grounds."

"Presidential Candidate Charles Evans Hughes and Mrs. Hughes, who saw the hula as danced by the Hawaiians on the visit of the Hughes party to the exposition, were highly pleased and saw no vulgarity. Other distinguished visitors to the exposition, including some of the most prominent women in the United States, who have been given special exhibitions by the Hawaiian troupe and no unfavorable comment has been made."

"Aside from the question of decency a representative of the greatest vaudeville organization in the world left San Diego a few days ago with a contract for Princess Lei Lokalani and members of her troupe for a vaudeville engagement throughout the United States and the theatrical man pronounced them the finest entertainers of their type in this country or Hawaii. For grace and beauty he pronounced Princess Lei Lokalani without a peer in the United States, and her brother, Eddie, he considered the finest player of the steel guitar he has ever heard. Auditor J. B. Pendleton, in charge of the Hawaiian village for the exposition, says no complaint has ever been made against a single dance since the village was opened."

"In the face of this general approval by Americans the Hawaiians are still greatly exercised at the insult they say is being offered them. A special feature article published the next week throughout the United States said the native hula hula that Americans see is an expurgated edition of that which the brown-skinned girls do on the famous Waikiki beach in the original it is too revealing and too primitive in its display of passion, but to the Hawaiians it is, even in its most expurgated form, not an immoral thing. They see nothing in it but untamed love in the coordination of muscle and melody."

This medicine made from roots and herbs has for forty years been alleviating the suffering of women, making them healthy and strong, and better wives and mothers.—Adv.

ZOO FUND IS PLANNED NOW BY HOLLINGER

To form a zoo fund from the proceeds derived from rides on the back of Daisy, the elephant, with which he will buy more animals for Kapiolani Park, is now the plan of Supervisor Ben Hollinger.

So successful was the first experiment last Sunday, when nearly $20 was taken in at the rate, and as Daisy's feed bill per month will only average $15, Hollinger begins to see prospects of making Kapiolani Park a second Bronx Gardens.

That $20 is nowhere near the limit is the opinion of Hollinger, as the old saddle only accommodates four children, while the new one being made will take eight. Definite plans have not been formulated as yet, but he expects to have a regular elephant path made and sell rides every day in the week.

HE WOULD BOOM HAWAIIAN TRADE

SPOKANE, Wash.—Furtherance of trade relations between the Pacific northwest and the Hawaiian Islands is the subject of a letter which reached the Spokane chamber of commerce from Governor Ernest Lister, enclosing a letter from A. P. Taylor, secretary of the Hawaii Promotion Committee. Governor Lister has sent similar letters to the Seattle and Tacoma commercial organizations.

The matter of the establishment of a line of steamers between Puget Sound and the islands is brought up in Mr. Taylor's letter. The matter was first taken up by Governor Elisha P. Ferry of Washington in 1892 and has largely been in abeyance ever since. Mr. Taylor states a large shipping trade is now done between the sound and the islands through the American-Hawaiian steamships and the Matson Navigation Company's steamships, freight carriers particularly.

CAPTAIN CLARK HONOR GUEST AT AD CLUB LUNCH

Commandant of Navy Yard Will Make First Appearance Before Civic Organization

Capt. Geo. R. Clark, commandant of the naval station, Pearl Harbor, will be guest of the Ad Club at its luncheon Wednesday. This is the first time that the recently arrived commandant has been the guest of any of the civic organizations of Honolulu.

Preparations for the coming civic convention will be a feature of the Ad Club lunch that will be brought out forcibly by several of the speakers. Capt. Clark may or may not speak on this subject for his theme was left to himself to determine. This subject will be handled in at least three reports that will be heard with interest. One of these will be from L. W. de Vis-Norton, who is local representative of the Hawaii Publicity Commission; another will be from Impresario Neal Slattery, and the third will be from John Blackburn, manager of the Singing Giants, expected from the mainland in time to make the trip with the Ad Club delegation.

Andrew K. Poepe, a native son of Hawaii and just returned from the mainland, where his remarkably fine baritone voice won much attention, will also be a dinner guest.

Harold Eugene Smith died Sunday at the Beretania Sanitarium. Funeral services will be next Sunday and the body will be forwarded to the mainland. Smith was an elder of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; unmarried; a native of Utah; 23 years of age, and had been here only a short time.
